

German Historical Institute
London

in cooperation with

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE LONDON AND THE ARTS AND HUMANITIES RESEARCH COUNCIL

Roundtable Debate

1914: What Historians Don't Know about the Causes of the First World War

to be held at the German Historical Institute London, Seminar Room on Wednesday, 18 June 2014, at 6.00 p.m.

The majority of lectures and conferences marking the centenary of the outbreak of the First World War will be examining why the conflict occurred, concentrating on particular sets of events leading to war or on different aspects of the war's course, character and consequences. By contrast, the emphasis of this roundtable discussion – and claim to originality – will be on continuing areas of uncertainty in the historical account of the outbreak of war: it will show how key decisions are still 'unexplained', allowing a variety of interpretations. This roundtable of internationally-renowned scholars will ask what we still do not know about the causes of the First World War.

Chair: MARK HEWITSON (UCL)

Speakers: MARGARET MACMILLAN (Oxford)
ANNIKA MOMBAUER (Open University)
SÖNKE NEITZEL (LSE)
JOHN RÖHL (Sussex)

Owing to limited seating please register in advance with abellamy@ghil.ac.uk

Please check for any last minute changes on 020 7309 2050 (tel.) or visit <http://www.ghil.ac.uk>
This event is to be held in the Seminar Room of the German Historical Institute London, 17 Bloomsbury Square, LONDON WC1A 2NJ.