

German Historical Institute
London

THYSSEN
LECTURES

SCIENCE, KNOWLEDGE, AND THE LEGACY OF EMPIRE

Colonial Times, Global Times: History and Imperial World-Making

Sebastian Conrad, Free University Berlin

LECTURE AND DISCUSSION

followed by reception

Mon
15.5.2023

5.30 pm GHI London

Tue
16.5.2023

4.30 pm University of Manchester
Department of History

ghilondon

ghi_london

ghi.london

German Historical Institute London
17 Bloomsbury Square | London WC1A 2NJ

For the lecture at the GHIL please register at:
www.ghil.ac.uk/events/lectures/thyssen-lectures

Seiyô dôchû hizakurige 西洋道中膝栗毛 (Shank's Mare Round the West), Japanese Illustrated book, by Kanagaki Robun and Fusô Kan, Tokyo, 1870-76 ©Trustees of the British Museum. Shared under a CC BY-NC-SA 4.0 licence.

Sebastian Conrad is Professor of Modern History at the Free University of Berlin. His work has focused on issues of coloniality/postcoloniality, global history, intellectual history, the history of nationalism, and the theory of history. At the Free University he directs the Global History MA programme and the Global Intellectual History graduate school. Among his publications are 'Enlightenment in Global History', American Historical Review, 117/4 (2012), 999-1027; German Colonialism: A Short History (2012); What is Global History? (2016); and, edited with Jürgen Osterhammel, An Emerging Modern World, 1750-1870 (2018).

Fritz Thyssen Stiftung
für Wissenschaftsförderung